Our value proposition

Lithe IT is passionate about developing long lasting relationships and do this by delivering value in every engagement we have. Our heritage on the “buy-side” brings an understanding of the importance of limiting and sharing project risk. Allied to this passion is our love of short focused engagements as we believe this approach makes it easier to justify expenditure against a clear and tangible ROI. We firmly believe in leveraging the technology at all times. TotalAgility is a fabulous platform and we use our experience to avoid common mistakes. We work hand in hand with your internal team, providing “on the job” training and skill transfer. Working with Lithe IT will help you avoid learning by trial and error. We have done this many times so know how to get it right first time. Your team will learn from our best practices and gain experience worth much more than technical training alone.

SPS UK engaged Lithe IT in the delivery of our SPS Lite Digital Mailroom solution. From the outset they worked as an extension of our team, taking the lead on activities, offering solutions to problems and adding new capabilities where possible. Their agility, combined with their knowledge of the product set and their professional approach was instrumental in achieving our goals.

Our delivery model

Lithe IT’s delivery model provides a framework for delivering successful solutions in short, sharp iterations. The accelerating pace of business change requires organisations to frequently adapt their processes and implement solutions in aggressive timescales – they must support change. However, traditional ‘waterfall’ methodologies attempt to eliminate or restrict change by specifying requirements in fine detail up-front and then imposing strict ‘change management’ procedures for any unplanned business requirements during delivery. Likewise more ‘agile’ based methodologies whilst seeking to address the ever changing requirements throughout the project lifecycle often present problems where certain functionality is omitted from a deliverable due to time and cost limits. Lithe IT’s approach recognises that requirements change, and that the best way to support change is through collaborative, iterative and rapid deployments.

Choose us because...

- Onevolve provides you pre- built solutions to rapidly address common business problems.
- Onevolve gives you a best practice framework upon which to extend and expand your business process solutions across your organization.
